ONE THIRD OF U.S. MANUFACTURING EMPLOYMENT IS WITHIN A 500 MILE RADIUS OF CONNECTICUT

About one-third of the total population of the United States lives within a 500-mile radius of Connecticut. In 1979, this population received 30.9 percent of the country's income payments, confirming the importance of these easily accessible markets to Connecticut industry.

In six of the 15 states in this area, per capita income levels were above the national level. Connecticut ranked third in the United States with a per capita income of $10,129—15.4 percent above the national average.

The area within a 500-mile radius boasts 31.0 percent of the nation's effective buying income.* Connecticut ranked 3rd per capita in this important measure of marketing strength. This figure of $8,360 was 14.4 percent above the $7,305 figure for the United States. Ranking third with a median household cash income of $20,815 Connecticut was 16.1 percent above the national level of $17,924.

Of utmost importance is the industrial composition of the area within a 500-mile radius of Connecticut. The area contains 33.4 percent of the country's manufacturing firms, 33.0 percent of the total manufacturing employment and 32.0 percent of the value added by manufacture.

Portions of Canada within this 500-mile radius provide a bonus market easily served from Connecticut. This market includes 62 percent of the Canadian population with effective buying income of $112 billion and retail sales volume of $50 billion.

* Effective Buying Income: Derived by Sales Management, Inc. from estimated total income less estimated payments for federal state and local taxes.

OVER 50 MILLION PEOPLE WITHIN 300 MILE RADIUS OF CONNECTICUT

Connecticut's strategic location is evidenced by the great potential lying within a 300-mile radius, normally considered the overnight delivery area. This easily accessible market contains a total of 48.5 million people, 21.9 percent of the population of the United States. In addition, nearly five million citizens of Canada reside within this radius. Hartford, the centrally located capital, is only 100 miles from both New York, the country's largest metropolitan marketing area of about ten million people and Boston, the sixth largest metropolitan marketing area of over three million people.

Income payments in the area during 1979 were 22.7 percent of the nation's total. Per household effective buying income in Connecticut of $23,917 was $3,232 above the United States average of $20,685.

The 300-mile radius of Connecticut is highly industrialized with 26 percent of the manufacturing firms and 24.0 percent of the manufacturing employment in the country. Value added by manufacture in the area was 23 percent of the nation's total.

In 1979 Connecticut manufacturers paid wages of over 8 billion dollars. The state ranks 16th in its value added by manufacture although it is only 24th in population.

CONNECTICUT TRANSPORT NETWORK CONTINUES EXPANSION TO MEET NEEDS OF A GROWING STATE

Connecticut, the "Gateway to New England" is served by an extensive network of expressways and major arterial highways which provide easy access of local and regional markets. Connecticut has 99 percent of its roads either paved or hard-surfaced. This is the highest percentage of any state in the nation. Interstate 95, a multi-lane expressway crossing the entire length of the state, is open to trucking. Illuminated for about half of its 112 mile length, I-95 is a substantial time-saver for trucks traveling to New York City and from there to the New Jersey Turnpike or in the other direction, to Providence or Boston.

Interstate 91 is complete and open to traffic between New Haven and Canada, via Hartford. It has reduced travel time between New Haven and Springfield, Massachusetts to less than an hour and a half. I-91 joins the Massachusetts Turnpike just over the state line. This artery provides a continuous expressway for trucking west to Albany, where it connects with Interstate 87 north to Montreal and with the New York State Thruway to Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and points west. Interstate 84 provides a super highway westerly from Hartford through Waterbury and Danbury to New York and Pennsylvania. East of Hartford, I-86 serves as a connector between I-84 and the Massachusetts Turnpike, providing a direct route to Boston.

Bradley International Airport is located in Windsor-Locks, 14 miles equidistant from Hartford, Connecticut and Springfield, Massachusetts. It is served by eight of the largest scheduled airlines carrying passengers and freight. It is also served by five certified air commuter lines for passengers and two air express lines carrying freight. Bradley is common rated with airports in Boston and New York for international freight operations. There are facilities for the convenience of international passengers and daily U.S. Customs Clearance inspection service is available both for the processing of passengers and for cargo shipments. Bradley is operated by the Connecticut Department of Tramsportation. Airports at Bridgeport, New Haven and Groton are also served by one or more airlines. There are 101 licensed landing areas in Connecticut; 27 of which are commercial airports, nine of which are heliports and three of which are seaplane bases, all open to the public.

Rail transportation is provided by the Consolidated Rail Corporation (Conrail), Central Vermont Railway, Inc. (a subsidiary of Grand Truck Corp.), National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) and the Providence and Worcester Company.

Conrail provides for the movement of freight from western and northern gateways into Connecticut, then moves it over its own branch line trackage to and from destinations within the state. It also provides for the movement of freight over the Amtrak controlled lines and three of the light density lines subsidized by the State with federal participation. Conrail also provides "piggyback" Trailer-on-Flatcar (TOFC) service from the Cedar Hill Yard in North Haven, which is adjacent to I-91.

The three subsidized light density lines operated by Conrail include the territory from Whethersfield to Rocky Hill; Avon to Simsbury; and Hartford to Bloomfield.

The Metropolitan Region of Conrail operates the New Haven Line commuter rail service between New Haven and Grand Central in New York City, including the Danbury, New Canaan and Waterbury branches, under a contract with the Metropolitan Transportation Authority of New York and the Connecticut Department of Transportation. This service operates more than 210 trains per day consisting of modern high-speed electric commuter cars.

The Central Vermont Railway Freight Service, operates in eastern Connecticut running north from New London to points in Vermont and Canada.

Amtrak, through its Northeast Corridor Group, controls all of the Northeast Corridor right-of-way through the state except for a portion between Greenwich and New Haven which is under the control of the Connecticut Department of Transportation. The Northeast Corridor includes the New Haven to Springfield Line.

Inter-city passenger service provided by Amtrak includes the shoreline route between Boston and New York, serving Stamford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Branford, Madison, East Lyme, Old Saybrook, New London and Mystic. The Springfield line provides passenger service between New Haven and Springfield, Massachusetts, including stops at Wallingford, Meriden, Berlin (New Britain), Hartford, Windsor, Windsor Locks, and Enfield (Thompsonville). This route also is used for Amtrak's Washington-Montreal service.

The Providence and Worcester Company provides freight service between Worcester, Massachusetts, and Plainfield, Connecticut, and from Plainfield to Willimantic. The latter is a light density line subsidized by the State with federal participation.

Connecticut's 250-mile shoreline, protected by the land mass of Long Island, has many excellent harbors on Long Island Sound and a series of river ports which are of interest to industry.

Deep-draft terminals, particularly significant to the economy of the state, are located at New Haven, Bridgeport and New London. Available at the ports in New Haven is container service by feeder barge to the Port of New York as well as heavy lift cranes. New Haven also has extensive oil and chemical storage facilities. In addition, there are shallow-draft terminals of commerical interest at Norwalk and Stamford. These and other small harbors along the shoreline also provide excellent facilities for pleasure boating.

CONNECTICUT'S POPULATION UP 2.4 PERCENT FROM 1970 CENSUS TOTAL

Connecticut's population totaled 3,107,576 in 1980 an increase of 2.4 percent above the 1970 level of 3,032,000.

Connecticut ranks fourth nationally in population density, having an average of 638 inhabitants per square mile.

About 72 percent of Connecticut's population is contained in 50 of its 169 towns on only 26 percent of the total land area. The density of these towns is 1,725 persons per square mile, while the remaining 119 towns have an average of 240 persons per square mile.

Several groups of demographers foresee an increase in Connecticut's population to a level of about 3.3 million by 1990, and a continued rise to 3.4 million by year 2000.

CONNECTICUT'S INCOME AND EFFECTIVE BUYING INCOME RANK HIGH

Connecticut continues to achieve high ranking in several measurements of income. For example, Connecticut's 1979 per capita effective buying income amounted to $8,360, third highest among all the states. In 1980 Connecticut ranked second in per capita personal income at a level of $11,445 and fourth in per household effective buying income with an average of $23,917. On a regional basis, the Bridgeport-Stamford-Norwalk-Danbury area had a median household effective buying income of $24,834, third among the nation's metro market areas.

Manufacturing accounted for 27 percent of Connecticut's personal income, contrasted with 20 percent from this source for the entire nation. Manufacturing income in Connecticut accounted for 43 percent of the state's total income derived from wages and salaries, compared with 31 percent for the entire nation.

Connecticut's Gross State Product, the market values of all goods and services produced amounted to $31.8 billion in 1978, an increase of 11 percent above the 1977 level of $28.7 billion.

Connecticut has no state or local personal income tax.

The inventory of manufacturers is exempt from local property tax. In 1981, 92 percent of wholesale and retail business inventories are also exempt from local property tax; 100 percent will be exempt by 1982. Water and air pollution control facilities are exempt from local property tax, as well as state sales tax; in addition, 5 percent of the total cost of constructing such facilities may be applied against the net income tax due under the Corporate Business Tax regulations. Machinery used directly in agriculture or manufacturing production is also exempt from the state sales tax.

Business losses may be applied to current income for a period of up to 5 years. In addition, consolidated returns may be filed, if such returns are also filed for federal income tax purposes.

PER CAPITA MONEY INCOME - 1977

Since the last issue of Market Data, the U.S. Bureau of the Census has released per capita money income estimates for each of Connecticut's towns. While these per capita estimates were primarily developed for use in determining federal revenue sharing allocations, the Bureau notes that these figures are used for program planning and administrative purposes by a number of federal, state and local government agencies.

By definition, money income includes wages and salaries, Social Security and welfare payments, interest and dividends, rental income, veterans' benefits, pensions and annuities, unemployment benefits, alimony and other money income.

Conceptually, money income differs from personal income in that the former excludes such items as income received from the sale of property, loans, bank withdrawals, capital gains, gifts, insurance payments, lump sum inheritances in addition to forms of nonmoney income, all of which are included in the definition of personal income.

RETAIL SALES CONTINUE UPTREND IN 1977

Retail sales in Connecticut rose from 7.2 to 10.4 billion dollars between 1972 and 1977. This is an increase of 44.5 percent according to data published in the 1977 Census of Retail Trade by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census. The Census of Retail Trade is generally regarded as the official source of sales data having compiled the most detailed data available. For the convenience of the user the information is broken down in various ways including categories, counties and cities with 2,500 inhabitants or more.

Food sales in 1977 exceeded all other categories accounting for 23 percent of total sales while the automotive group edged over 1.7 billion or 17 percent of total dollars spent at retail. General merchandise items produced the third highest volume of dollar sales, claiming 12 percent of total sales.

CONNECTICUT'S EMPLOYMENT SHOWS CONSIDERABLE DIVERSIFICATION

Connecticut, one of the most highly industrialized of the states, ranks 4th in the nation in the ratio of manufacturing employees to total nonagricultural employment and 5th in per capita value added by manufacture. Approximately 27 percent of Connecticut's personal income is derived from manufacturing, which employs more than 3 out of every 10 of the state's nonagricultural work force and 13 percent of its total population.

Connecticut's manufacturing firms turn out a wide variety of goods as evidenced by the fact that the state has over 80 percent of the 426 industrial classifications listed in the manufacturing section of the "Standard Industrial Classification Manual." Producers of metal products provide jobs for about 73 percent of Connecticut's total manufacturing work force. The transportation equipment industry employs more workers than any other major group, having some 92,000 workers on the payroll. Chief among these products are aircraft engines and parts, submarines, helicopters and motor vehicle component parts. Other important metal producers would include the fabricated metals industry, the machinery group, and producers of electrical equipment. These three industries employ more than 169,000 workers.

The nonmetalworking industries provide employment for 3 out of every 10 factory workers. The printing and publishing industry, the chemicals industry and the miscellaneous nonmetallic products groups are the principal employers with more than 54,000 workers.

The steady growth of Connecticut's nonmanufacturing work force, which presently accounts for about 70 percent of the state's nonagricultural workers, provides stability for a well-balanced economy. In October 1980 more than 159,000 were employed in retail trade, over 180,000 in government, and in excess of 281,000 in service occupations. At the same time, the widely known insurance group employed over 58,000 persons.

Connecticut ranks first nationally in the per capita number of industrial research laboratories. These provide a diversified research capability in support of the development effort of other groups. A wide variety of public and private organizations are utilizing their research capabilities to generate the knowledge that leads to new products and applications which will provide tomorrow's jobs and payrolls.

Another important factor in Connecticut's overall employment picture is the recent influx of major business organizations that are relocating corporate headquarters or executive offices in this state. During the past seven years, such noteworthy names as American Can Co., American Thread Co., Avco Corp., Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., International Business Machines Corp., Xerox Corp., Olin Corp., Schweppes Ltd., Stauffer Chemical Co., General Electric Co., Uniroyal Inc., U.S. Tobacco, Combustion Engineering, Yardney Electric Corp., General Telephone and Electronics Corp. and Continental Oil Co. are among the more than 70 internationally known corporations which have constructed or announced plans for new facilities in Connecticut.

1,158,884 HOUSING UNITS IN CONNECTICUT

The increase in the number of dwelling units in an area may be used as an indicator of growth. On January 1, 1980, the Conn. Census Data Center, Comprehensive Planning Div., Office of Policy and Management reported 1,158,884 housing units in Connecticut. This was an increase of 177,281 units or 18.3 percent over the 981,603 units reported by the Bureau of Census as the state total in 1970.

As defined by the Bureau of the Census in 1970, a housing unit is a house, an apartment, a group of rooms, or a single room occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters. Separate living quarters are those in which the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and which quarters have either (1) direct access from the outside of the building or through a common hall or (2) complete kitchen facilities for the exclusive use of the occupants.

Year-round housing units in Connecticut had a median number of 5.2 rooms and 3.2 population per housing unit according to the 1970 census, while the median value of owner-occupied dwellings was $25,500.

The 1970 census reported a vacancy rate of 4.2 for rental housing units, and a rate of 0.7 for home-owner units. The percentage of all housing units having complete plumbing facilities was 97.3 percent in the state, compared with 84.7 percent reported in the 1960 census. The ratio of owner-occupied dwelling units in the state was 62.5 percent in 1970 contrasted with 61.9 percent reported in 1960.

2,085,023 TAXABLE MOTOR VEHICLES RECORDED IN CONNECTICUT

Taxable motor vehicles in Connecticut numbered 2,085,023 in 1979, an increase of 27.6 percent above the 1970 total of 1,633,330. Taxable motor vehicles, as reported to the State Tax Department, include trucks, trailers, tractors, motorcycles, aircraft and snowmobiles, as well as passenger cars.

The total number of motor vehicles registered in Connecticut, reported by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, numbered an estimated 2,229,000 in 1979, 48,229 higher than the previous year. The figure for total registrations is normally above that for taxable motor vehicles, due to the fact that the same vehicle may be registered to more than one owner in a given calendar year. Passenger car registrations, which account for 92 percent of total registrations, increased from 2,006,252 in 1978 to 2,051,000 in 1979.

PLANNING REGIONS OF CONNECTICUT

By definition, a planning region is composed of a group of relatively homogeneous towns which have definite economic, social and physical ties. The towns within the regional boundaries share mutual interests, needs and problems.

A regional planning agency is created through legislative action of the individual towns within the planning region in accordance with Chapter 127 of the Connecticut General Statutes. The purpose of a regional planning agency is to formulate a comprehensive plan of development for the region as defined by Section 8-35a of Chapter 127 and to carry out regional planning and coordinative functions.

A regional council of elected officials created by the legislative action of individual towns within a defined planning region under Chapter 50 Section 4-124c through Section 4-124h of the Conn. Statutes may exercise all the powers of a regional planning agency where no regional planning agency exists in the planning region.

Also, with a defined planning region, there may be created under Chapter 50, Sections 4-124i-4-124p a regional council of governments through the adoption of ordinances by the legislative bodies of not less than 60 percent of all town, cities as well as boroughs located within the planning region. The regional planning duties of a regional council of governments, including the preparation of a regional plan of development, area carried out exclusively for the council of governments by a regional planning commission as a subdivision of the council of governments.

Widespread adoption of the regional planning concept is evident throughout the state. Connecticut's 15 planning regions consisting of 13 regional council of elected officials, embrace 167 of the State's 169 towns. All agencies responsible for regional planning have appointed directors and have professional staff to carry out many technical and comprehensive regional planning functions.

MISCELLANEOUS MAP SECTION

This section includes maps giving information not covered elsewhere in the book, but of specific interest to industrial developers and new business and industry. The maps, by title, are: Territory Covered by Electric Companies; Towns Served with Gas by Connecticut Gas Companies; Telephone Exchanges in Connecticut; and Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas. A brief description of each follows.

Electric power is supplied to the entire State of Connecticut by ten private and municipal utility companies. Adequate transmission and distribution lines enable the state's electric utilities to accommodate large load requirements virtually anywhere. The companies serving the state are Connecticut Light and Power Company, Hartford Electric Light Company, United Illuminating Company, Borough of Jewett City Electric Light Plant, Borough of Wallingford Electric Department, Bozrah Light and Power Company, City of Groton Electric Department, City of Norwalk Second Taxing District, City of Norwalk Third Taxing District and City of Norwich Department of Public Utilities. The Connecticut Light and Power Company and Hartford Electric Light Company are affiliates of Northeast Utilities.

One public and five private gas companies provide the state with gas service. The private companies are Connecticut Light and Power Co., Connecticut Natural Gas Corp., Hartford Electric Light Co., Pequot Gas Co., and Southern Connecticut Gas Co. The City of Norwich Department of Public Utilities is municipally owned and operated.

Telephone service throughout the state is provided by the Southern New England Telephone Company, operating through 27 main exchanges, and the independent Woodbury Telephone Company. In addition to its main exchanges, the Southern New England Telephone Company has 55 subsidiary exchanges.

There are eleven Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) in Connecticut, as defined by the Office of Federal Statistical Policies and Standards, U.S. Department of Commerce. The area concept has been developed to meet the need for the presentation of general-purpose statistics by agencies of the federal government. Area definitions, designed to serve a wide variety of statistical and analytical purposes, have been updated through 1980.
